STATE DIRECTOR OF CONSERVATION FOR LOCAL PLANS

Official Promises Full Cooperation in Ful- fillment of Ideas

Director Thomas J. Lynch of the Illinois Department of Conservation, accompanied by Representative Henry White of Somonauk, President Louis Knick, Postmaster George Frun and A. E. Whitehead of the Dixon Conservation club, late yesterday afternoon completed a tour of sites in Lee county which have been proposed for improvement. Director Lynch was the guest of the Dixon club at the double dedication program Thursday, being one of the principal speakers at the banquet in the evening and remained in Dixon Friday to visit sites in this vicinity. L. A. Lauer of Amboy, acquisition agent for the department, whose activity resulted in the procuring of 2,224 acres of land in East Grove and Hamilton townships, accompanied the party on the inspection tour.

The Green River restoration project, where the conservation department plans to expend about $200,000 in the near future in creating the first game sanctuary in Illinois, which is to become one of the finest in the country, was visited. Representative Henry White secured the passage of a bill in the legislature which made possible the location of the site in Lee county in preference to six sites presented for the department's consideration.

The sanctuary project is established under the Robinson-Pittman act recently passed by Congress. Funds for the project have been appropriated by the Illinois legislature under House bill 257 which was presented by Representative White. Since its passage Director Lynch has been procuring options on land in the Lee county territory and as soon as sufficient acreage is available, work is to be started. The state under the federal act will be reimbursed 75 per cent of the amount expended. The other 25 per cent will be taken from the fish and game fund of the state conservation department. This fund is made up entirely from license fees collected from the sale of hunting and fishing licenses and involves no direct taxation on the citizens of Lee county.

Other Places Visited

Director Lynch was taken to the Dixon state hospital where with Managing Officer Dr. Warren G. Murray, the institution property was inspected. Lowell park, the Pines state park were included in the morning trip, returning from Oregon to Dixon along the Rock river drive.

Fantastic Tale Told By Child; Investigation

Police today were investigating what they termed a fantastic story told by eight-year-old Bonnie Freiburg, who disappeared from her home, 321 North Ottawa avenue last evening and did not return home until about 8:45 this morning. The mother of the girl notified the police last evening at 7 o'clock of the disappearance of her daughter and a wide search was started. A description of the girl was broadcast over the state police radio system and police of other cities were requested to join the search.

Upon her return home this morning she related a story of having been forced into a car at the corner of North Galena avenue and Fellows street by a strange man, who took her for a ride through the business district and later drove east of the city to the cement plant curve, where he tied a handkerchief over her eyes and held her prisoner in the car until an early hour this morning.

Checking up on her story, the police learned that the girl was seen about 7 o'clock last evening sitting on a culvert headwall east of the cement plant curve, but residents of that locality told the officers that no car had been parked at the location described by the girl.

Chief J. D. Van Bibber at noon today stated that his investigation disclosed that the girl had spent the night at the home of Mrs. J. C. Atkinson at the top of the cement plant hill. Chief Van Bibber with the girl's step-father went to the Atkinson home this morning and learned the facts which disproved the child's earlier kidnapping narrative, which was discredited by police.

Plans Complete For Observance Of Armistice Day

With the expectation that Armistice Day this year will have added significance because of the European situation, and that because of this Dixon business and professional men and the general public will wish to cooperate in every way in fitting observance of the day, Dixon post No. 12, American Legion is making plans for such observance.

It has been decided to hold the exercises at the high school on Saturday, Nov. 11, the program starting at 10 o'clock in the auditorium, where the address of the day will be delivered by the Rev. F. C. Voet of Warren, chaplain of the Department of Illinois, American Legion. The usual service at the flag pole at 11 A. M. will be adjourned at approximately 11:10.

Funeral of Robert Huffman Here Sunday

The funeral of Robert Huffman, 23, whose death in Chicago early Friday morning was announced in last evening's Telegraph, will be held at the Melvin funeral home here at 2:30 o'clock Sunday afternoon, the Rev. R. W. Ford of the First Christian church officiating, and with burial at Chapel Hill Memorial park.

The deceased was born in Ogile county August 13, 1916 and is survived by his father, Clarence Huffman of Dixon; his mother, Mrs. Lorraine O'Neill of Chicago; his widow, Inga; a daughter, Peggy Lee; a brother, Lee, of Dixon; and a sister, Mrs. Dorothy O'Hare of Dixon.

Two guards were taking the 29-year-old prisoner from an Atlanta hospital to the Tattall county prison at Reidsville, 200 miles distant. Accompanying them were his wife, 23, and his mother, socially prominent Mrs. Worth E. Yankey.

SENATORS TAKE TRUCE TO REST FOR MORE TALK

Debate on Neutrality Bill To Be Resumed on Monday

Washington, Oct. 7.—(AP)—The senate declared a "truce for rest" in its battle over the neutrality revision bill today.

Administration forces claimed additional votes for repeal of the arms embargo and both sides prepared for a first test of strength Tuesday.

Although some senators were scheduled to carry on the contest over the radio during the week-end, most of them were weary of listening to thousands of words on how best to keep the United States out of war and planned to obtain a two-day rest.

Administration supporters said that, with the anticipated arrival here Tuesday of Governor A. B. Chandler of Kentucky to take the seat of the late Senator Logan (D-Ky), they would have 65 votes for the bill to lift the arms embargo and establish a "90-day credit and carry" system of handling all exports to belligerents.

They gave the opposition only 27 votes on their poll list and put question-marks beside two of these. They listed only Senators Reynolds (D-NC); Gillette (D-Iowa); Gerry (D-RI); and Davis (R-Pa.) as doubtful.

The opposition disputed these claims, saying they had definite pledges against the bill from 32 to 34 senators. They predicted they would muster much greater strength for a substitute measure retaining the embargo on arms shipments and providing a strict "cash and carry" policy as to other goods sold the warring nations.

Senator Downey (D-Calif.), who denounced embargo repeal in a three-hour speech yesterday as involving disaster for domestic economy in event of a war-trade boom, will conclude his address Monday.

'Doomed' Liner Believed Safe by Naval Dept.

Washington, Oct. 7.—(AP)—A navy spokesman's cryptic observation that "no news is good news" gave reason to believe today that the steamship Iroquois was proceeding unharmed on its voyage across the Atlantic with Americans fleeing the European war.

A German official advised the United States on Thursday that the ship would be sunk before reaching this country. The implication of the message, as made public by the White House, was that it would be destroyed by Britain or France and the blame placed upon Germany.

Captain Edgar A. Chelton, the ship's master, wireless the Maritime Commission several times yesterday that the vessel was proceeding uneventfully. It is scheduled to reach New York next Wednesday.

The navy has sent warships to protect the Iroquois, but has not divulged whether they have reached the ship. President Roosevelt remarked at Hyde Park yesterday that it would be unwise to make public any information. The navy spokesman pursued this policy here last night, refusing to give out any news but remarking that "no news is good news."

Wealthy Atlanta, Ga., Life-Term Prisoner Escapes With His Bride

Atlanta, Ga., Oct. 7.—(AP)—Officers searched southeast Georgia today for Richard Gallogly, wealthy Atlanta life-term, who, guards reported, drew a pistol and escaped last night in an automobile with his pretty blonde bride of four months by his side.

Two guards were taking the 29-year-old prisoner from an Atlanta hospital to the Tattall county prison at Reidsville, 200 miles distant. Accompanying them were his wife, 23, and his mother, socially prominent Mrs. Worth E. Yankey.

Guard Joe Freeman said that near Graymont-Summit—40 miles from the prison—Gallaghy, asking that a routine stop be made, forced him and the other guard from the car and left them by the roadside with his mother. Gallaghy and his wife drove swiftly away toward Swainsboro and Macon, Freeman added.

Expansion of U. S. Army to Its Limit Ordered

Washington, Oct. 7.—(AP)—The war department announced intention today to expand the army to its full peace-time limit of 280,000 men and at the same time ordered mass training this winter of seven new "streamlined" divisions.

Five divisions and additional units comprising more than 65,000 troops will be concentrated first at scattered southern points and then at Fort Benning, Ga., for large-scale training as an army corps.

Two cavalry divisions will be concentrated at Fort Bliss, El Paso, Texas.

A formal announcement, approved by President Roosevelt, disclosed the plan calls for converting the peace-time army into a fully-prepared fighting force.

With addition of 53,000 more regular troops, "when and if authorized" by congress, a second combat corps of four additional "streamlined" divisions will be created.

Start Moving Oct. 25

The army's present first division, now stationed at 10 different posts in the northeast, will start moving about October 25 to Fort Benning. Other divisions will move "in rapid succession" first to other posts in the south, then concentrating with the first and with special corps units at Fort Benning.

During the training of this combat corps of five divisions, National Guard and reserve officers of upper ranks will be taken to Fort Benning for training.

The initial concentration point for the second division will be Fort Sam Houston, San Antonio, Texas. The third division will concentrate at Fort Lewis, Wash., for several weeks before proceeding to Fort Benning, the fifth division will mass at Camp McClellan, Ala., and the sixth at Camp Jackson, S. C.

Newly-organized special corps troops will mass at Fort Bragg, N. C., Fort Knox, Ky., and Camp Ord, Calif.

The five new streamlined divisions, organized last month, together with special corps and general headquarters troops, comprise the army's first fully-organized combat division since the World war.

To Form New Corps

The war department said that when the four new streamlined divisions are created they will be formed into a second corps. The first corps to be organized already has been designated as the fourth corps.

Secretary Woodring said it was essential that "in view of the extremely limited numbers available for the defense of the United States as an initial protective force, the training of this nucleus should be perfected in such a manner as to insure its maximum effectiveness."

At Fort Benning and probably at the initial concentration points the troops will live under tents, because of a shortage of permanent housing.

President Roosevelt announced this week, however, he had directed the army to ignore congressional limitations and provide necessary housing.

No Mention of War

Woodring said permanent barracks vacated in the north by troops moving to southern points would be used for organization and preliminary training of additional units, provided congress approves their formation.

The announcement was made without mention of the European war or the limited national emergency proclaimed by Roosevelt a month ago. Officials asserted plans for mass maneuvers had been in existence for five years but could not be carried out for lack of funds.

The southern training this winter will continue until late spring. Officials contrasted this extended period with the two weeks allotted the war department's skeleton First Army in August at Manassas, Va., and Plattsburg, N. Y.

Embarrassing

New York, Oct. 7.—(AP)—The brewers didn't mind, but the W. C. T. U. still was annoyed today because the "wets" and the "drys" were allotted the same honorary day at the New York World's Fair.

Dr. Ida B. Wise Smith, president of the Women's Christian Temperance Union, said the organization was so irked, that it postponed its "day," originally scheduled for Thursday, to Friday. The women also found a non-alcoholic restaurant to patronize. The restaurant where they originally planned to eat was found to be serving alcoholic beverages.

As for the brewers they went right ahead and celebrated their "day," as planned.

DRAMATIC STORY OF TRIP ACROSS PACIFIC IS TOLD

Pirates, Typhoons, Lack of Water and Rations Highlights of Tale

Quatsino, B. C., Oct. 7.—(Canadian Press)—Five men, one woman and a fortunate dog and cat waited on the Chinese junk Tai Ping here today for a tow to Seattle, and as they waited, they reminisced about a 6,000-mile trip in a boat that would sail only before the wind, with a Chinese Diesel engine "that never worked."

Their story, as told by Captain John Anderson, included pirates, typhoons, short rations, lack of water—and a wind that just would not blow in the right direction.

Captain Anderson related that the Tai Ping left Shanghai April 7, was forced back to shore in China and Japan three times, but finally made the trans-Pacific trip entirely under sail.

Rations, he said, were successively reduced to two, then one meal a day, finally to rice alone, boiled in three-fourths salt and one-fourth fresh water. Even so, he said, new rations became essential September 29.

Sighted Island Sept. 30

"I instructed one of the sailors to kill the dog and cat to provide additional food," he said "but the following morning, September 30, we sighted the Queen Charlotte island."

"On October 3, we were picked up by the United coast guard cutter (Discoverer) who replenished our stock and towed us. But too much strain was on our junk and we cut loose and decided to sail down. But the wind left us and we drifted into Brooks Bay, where, as the wind was driving us closer and closer to the rocks, the fishing boat Flying Cloud came alongside on October 4 and saved us once more and towed us to Quatsino."

Captain Anderson's chief complaint about the trip was the Chinese motor. The mechanism broke down a few hours out of Shanghai, he said, and was never successfully repaired.

Difficulties Multiplied

Difficulties were multiplied, he pointed out, by the fact the junk draws only three and one-half feet

Foreign U-Boat Sighted 15-Mi. from Miami, Fla.

Hyde Park, N. Y., Oct. 7.—(AP)—The temporary White House announced today that a submarine definitely identified as foreign had been sighted yesterday about 15 miles from Miami, Fla.

The nationality of the submarine was not disclosed, nor was it learned how she was sighted. The spot where the undersea craft appeared is well within the neutrality zone set up by the recent declaration of the American republics. That declaration, however, was aimed primarily at discouraging hostile acts within the zone.

William Hassett, a White House secretary, said the president had authorized him to release the report on the submarine in accordance with the policy of telling of the presence of foreign warships in waters adjacent to our shores.

The submarine was the first reported officially in American waters since Roosevelt disclosed at a recent press conference that one had been sighted off southern Alaska and another off Boston.

Hitler's Peace Proposals Under Scrutiny Today

War in Brief

(By The Associated Press)

Berlin—Hitler characterized as "unreliably confident" that allies will heed his peace plea; informed sources say President Roosevelt preferred as neutral mediator.

Washington—Roosevelt represented as unlikely to offer mediation in European war unless Britain, France so desire.

London—Chamberlain may reply Monday to Hitler's plea; press cool toward Nazi terms.

Paris—France prepares for long war; Germans reported moving reinforcements to western front, where quiet continues.

Rome—Fascists say Mussolini ready to lend good offices if Britain, France, signify interest in peace parley.

Moscow—Russia makes week-end talks with Lithuania, Turkey as her influence expands in eastern Europe.

Copenhagen—Finland may be next to send envoy to Moscow for conference.

By The Associated Press

Peace proposals by Adolf Hitler were weighed today at the end of the fifth week of the British-French war with Germany.

Calm on the western front continued to contract with the activity on the diplomatic front.

All the fighting reported by the German supreme army command was:

"In the west, local scouting and troop actions of the enemy were repulsed. Otherwise there was only a sporadic barrage of fire."

The French general staff matched this with the cryptic report: "Activity of reconnaissance elements on the front, notably in the region southwest of Saarbrücken."

The Germans reported they had shot down a French scouting plane yesterday over German territory and captured another and its crew of four; the French in turn said they had captured a German plane and its pilot.

The reaction to Hitler's peace proposals dominated the European situation.

Hitler Confident

Hitler himself was represented in Berlin as "serenely confident his peace appeal will be heeded."

Nazis said he was waiting for some neutral—preferably President Roosevelt—to offer to mediate.

But well-informed quarters in Washington said they believed the President would not make an offer unless Britain and France so desired.

German officialdom in turn said it saw no reason why the President—or any other neutral—need assure himself of acceptance of an offer of mediation before making it, adding that neutral soundings

HEATING THE SMALL HOUSE

Warm Air the Favorite of Many Different opinions are often expressed as to the most efficient and economical system of heating the small house, but many people feel that none of the systems compare with the warm air system in economy and efficiency.

If the house is small and compact and contains but one or two small rooms on the second floor, a pipeless furnace should be given serious consideration. If the house is beyond the capacity of the small pipeless furnace, the warm air system should certainly be weighed. Such systems have cold air registers inside the house and the furnace is called upon to add but a few degrees of heat to the already heated air in order to keep the rooms at the desired temperature.

Casement Fit All Styles of Architecture

One of the unique and interesting things about casement windows is that a group of casements seem to harmonize well with each class of construction and almost every period. Casements give a friendly air to a house and blend beautifully in most cases.

There are steel casements and wooden casements, either of which may be used to advantage on a half-timbered house such as is shown in this illustration. If desired, transoms may be built over the casements and they may be fixed or allowed to open.

Out-swinging casements are less likely to leak than a casement which swings into the house. In the out-swinging casement the screen must be placed on the inside.

WHEN BUILDING

Neighborhood Is Important

If you expect to build, be careful to choose a good location which will have certain characteristics: First, it should be in a neighborhood which is growing and increasing in value, restricted to its type of buildings. Second, the property should be healthily located so as to allow good drainage and a good basement. The water supply should be pure, and the location accessible and transportation facilities available. Find out what are the fire risks and how much fire protection a home owner may expect. Third, in the event that you should decide to sell the property, would the location and the type of building you are to erect have a good resale value for many people of moderate means? An expensive house calls for expensive service and there is a limited number of buyers for this type of a house. A very cheap or unattractive house is rarely a good sale proposition.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Q. I wish to make some repairs and improvements to my house under the FHA plan, but I feel that I need the help of an architect. Could he be paid out of the loan?

A. Yes. The proceeds of a loan may be used to pay for architectural and engineering services performed in connection with eligible alterations, repairs, or improvements financed in accordance with FHA regulations.

Q. What kind of paint should I use in my kitchen?

A. In the kitchen and bathroom and other service portions of the house a high gloss enamel will be found easy to keep clean and highly resistant to wear.

Q. How should I decide on the kind of fuel to be used in my new house?

A. The costs of fuels and service offered by fuel dealers in a community should be compared as well as the cost of different types of burners fired by different types of fuel. Considerations, other than economy, are the degree of comfort and convenience to be expected, cleanliness, dependability of fuel supply and service, ease of fuel ignition, and safety and ease in fuel handling, use, and storage.

Q. Is it best to place a house nearer the street, nearer the rear property line, or in the center of the lot?

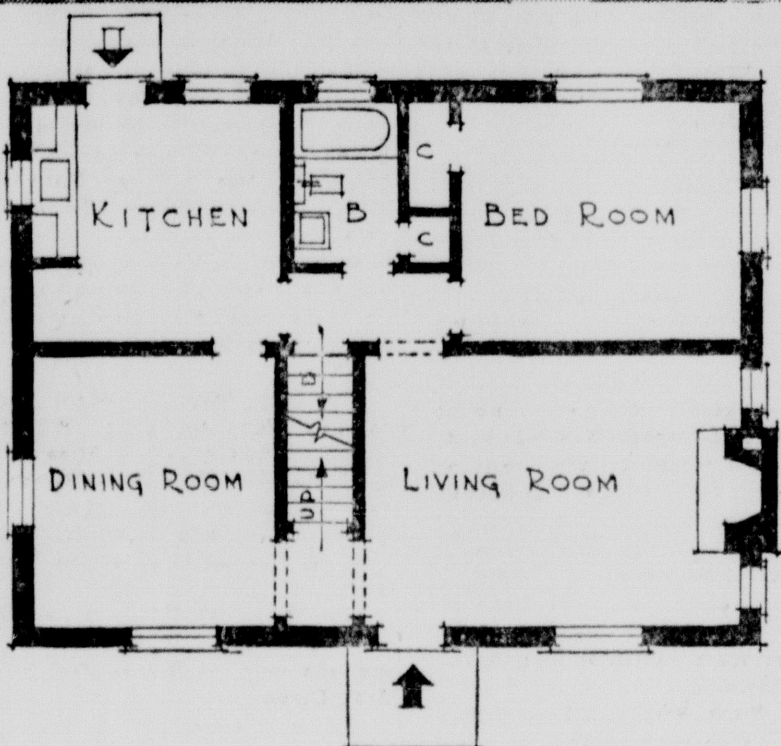

A. There is no set rule. The house should be placed on the lot so as to take advantage of the best natural features, such as views, the slope of the land, sunlight, prevailing winds, and shade trees. The location of the house, together with the arrangement of garages, open spaces, terraces, landscaping, and walks and drives, should result in a pleasing appearance of the property as a whole. Furthermore, the location of the house should provide greatest usefulness and convenience. The location of buildings on adjoining property also should be considered in order to have as much privacy and freedom from noise as possible and to preserve the good appearance of the street as a whole.

General Pershing, on 79th birthday, calls on Congress to authorize full peace army of 280,000 men.

Conservative Treatment

The owner of this attractive brick home has received a great deal for his money, as it contains several features commonly reserved for houses in a price class above $5,000. The plain brick exterior shows no waste of money for needless decoration, while the interior though minimum in its present arrangement, presents a complete and comfortable living unit. Valued at $5,000, this property's $4,500 mortgage was insured by the Federal Housing Administration. Monthly payments, including interest, principal, and mortgage insurance premium, amount to only $27.24 and will run over a period of 25 years.

• FLOOR PLAN •

Good Design Needed in Homes

Low-Cost Structures Require Special Care

The principles of plan efficiency, economic use of materials, and proper equipment, which are important in any class of dwellings, become paramount in the design of small low-priced houses. Federal Housing Administration officials maintain.

Every square foot of space, every odd corner, every length of pipe, every pipe connection, every foot of lumber that can be eliminated must be saved.

At the same time, FHA officials explain, these economies and efficiencies may not be obtained at the sacrifice of substantial construction or of minimum standards for convenience and comfort.

The planning of the small house thus becomes a special art, rigidly limited by the necessity for low cost, yet none the less exacting in its requirement for functional arrangement and esthetic satisfaction.

LONG MIRROR

Try to include a full length mirror in the house at the most advantageous point, because it will pay for itself in satisfaction of the home owner many times. If one is placed in the door of the entrance hall closet, the women of the house may take a composite view of the ensemble of dress, hat, accessories, etc., to be sure they are looking their best and that no false note is struck by the costume. This applies to the man of the family as well. In greeting guests who are arriving, it may be the means of assuring the host or hostess that they are spic and span to receive callers.

In the bedroom such a mirror will find its greatest use, for there is where dressing takes place, the trying on and fitting of new garments, inspection of appearance when the toilette is completed, and the full length mirror is the only means of checking up fully on one's appearance.

These mirror doors may be secured in stock size and come in different varieties of color of glass—peach, flesh, blue, etc., but the simple plate glass mirror will be more satisfactory if utility rather than decoration is the requirement.

LINOLEUM FOR KITCHEN WALLS

A most practical idea is that of covering the walls of the kitchen with a good grade of linoleum. It may be beautifully decorative, washable and sanitary. It is easy to clean by simply washing; and there may be rounded corners at the baseboards, moldings, etc. There are many patterns—rich, marbled designs in many color combinations, and then the delicate pastel shades may be just the thing you wish. And the long-run cost is no more, if as much, as paint and enamel. Why not consider linoleum for your kitchen?

WASHABLE WALLPAPER

Did you know that there are washable wallpapers? The designs are splendid, created by clever artists, and made by responsible firms. These papers can be safely washed with soap and water.

New Light Switch Is Safety Aid

Permits Exit From Room Before Darkness Settles

Advancement in the electrical industry comes so rapidly now that even owners of extremely modern homes eye with eagerness many new devices that have been put on the market since they selected fixtures for their new home.

One of the most recent and one which seems practical enough to receive wide popularity is the "delayed darkness" wall light switch. With this device, which may be installed in place of any other type of wall switch, lights in the room burn from 20 to 60 seconds after the switch has been thrown. The new switches may be installed with funds obtained from qualified lending institutions under the Modernization Credit Plan of the Federal Housing Administration.

The chief benefit of the "delayed darkness" switch is that it allows the operator sufficient time to leave the room or walk down the porch steps before darkness arrives.

ARCHITECT SOLVES BUILDING PROBLEMS

An architect should be to you your doctor of planning and construction. Solving building problems is the job of the architect. By training and experience he is qualified to advise you in constructing your home. His knowledge of design, planning, building materials and construction will make your home much more livable, convenient and fundamentally sound. The design is likely to be more architecturally correct and attractive and the little touches he will add—based on his experience and knowledge of building other homes—will more than pay the cost of his fee.

It is theoretically possible for one pair of Australian rabbits to have 20,000,000 descendants within five years.

COMING! THE OLD RANGE ROUND-UP

FHA LACKS LOAN AUTHORIZATION

Federal Housing Administration officials, in view of the continued high volume of home financing and modernization operations throughout the country, again point out that FHA is not empowered to lend any money.

The purchase of thousands of homes throughout the country and the modernization of properties under the FHA have been made possible entirely from private capital sources including banks, savings and loan associations, savings banks, life insurance companies, finance companies, and similar agencies.

Federal Housing Administration acts as an insurance agency, insuring the mortgage on the property offered as security for a loan made by an approved financial institution. Under FHA's Modernization Credit Plan, private funds are advanced by qualified lending institutions for home repairs, alterations, and additions, and the lending agency is insured against loss.

EFFICIENCY IN FIREPLACE CUTS HEATING COSTS

Fall and Spring heating costs can be reduced by an efficient fireplace, and in extremely mild climates it is often found that no other heating equipment is needed.

Factory-made fireplace units designed to circulate heat throughout the entire room and even into adjoining rooms, are being manufactured and may be installed in the home with funds obtained from qualified lending institutions under the Modernization Credit Plan of the Federal Housing Administration.

Fireplaces are also growing in popularity as a source of heat for basement recreation rooms.

FRAME CAUSES HOUSE DEFECTS

The strength of a building is in its frame. If the framing lumber contains too much moisture it will dry out on the job, causing such conditions as sagging floors, mis-aligned doors and windows, cracked walls and open joints in trim. Lumber not properly seasoned affects the permanence and increases maintenance cost. Good design, skilled labor and the right kind of material all are important.

Miss Anne Miller and Mr. De Arvil to Wed, Tonight

Bouquets of pink and white chrysanthemums, garden flowers and palms, together with white tapers in candelabra, will be used to decorate the First Baptist church this evening for the nuptial ceremony which will unite in marriage Miss Anne Miller, elder daughter of the John C. Millers of College avenue, and Murray Lawrence De Arvil, only son of Mrs. Gussie Newcomer of Mt. Morris. The single ring service will be read at 8 o'clock by Dr. J. H. Hughes of Amboy, pastor of the church, before an assemblage of more than 100 guests.

Nuptial selections will be played on the organ by Mrs. Hughes, preceding the ceremony. She will conclude her prelude with the Lohengrin wedding march, which will be the signal for the bride party to enter the aisle leading to the altar. Mrs. L. B. Potter will sing two solos, "Because" and "O Promise Me."

Miss Mae Clark is to be maid of honor and Max Stetner of Mt. Morris will serve as best man. The bride's little four-year-old nephew, John Miller, son of the Lyndol Millers, is to carry the ring on a white satin pillow.

The bride's gown of white brocade satin is fashioned with a short train, puffed sleeves that taper at the elbow to form points over the hand, and a fitted bodice, trimmed down the back with tiny covered buttons. Her fingertip veil is held to her coiffure by a lace cap trimmed with seed pearls and orange blossoms, and she will carry an arm bouquet of roses.

Miss Clark, as maid of honor, will wear fuchsia taffeta with a jacket, designed with a bustle peplum. In her hair will be a bow of wine-colored velvet ribbon, and she, too, will carry roses.

Following the ceremony, a reception will be held in the church parlors, with the Misses Mary Louise Sitter and Darlene Clark presiding at the serving table. The pink and white wedding cake, rising seven tiers high, will be the centerpiece for the table.

Afterward, Mr. De Arvil and his bride plan to leave on a wedding trip to Lake of the Ozarks. For traveling, this evening's bride will be attired in a black velvet and Scotch plaid wool ensemble with black accessories.

When they return to Dixon, the bride and groom will be at home temporarily with the bride's parents, until their home on Dement avenue is ready for them.

Miss Miller has been employed at the Prince Ice Cream Castle. Mr. De Arvil, who is a graduate of Mt. Morris high school with the class of 1937, has been employed as an electrician at Montgomery Ward and company.

Invitations are being issued for the fourth annual Chicago-Dixonite club party and dance, which will be held Saturday evening, Oct. 14. The affair will take place in the Fred Harvey "jungle room" in the Union station.

BUSINESS TAKES LARGE GRAIN OF SALT WITH BOOM

Encouraging indeed is the marked tendency of the business world to take with a large grain of salt the upsurge of business due directly and indirectly to the European war. Coming just when it did, the upsurge was welcome, and the prospect of profitable business is pleasant to many firms who for the past two years have been operating in the red.

But there is very little of the wild hullabaloo that greeted the "war boom" of 1915 and 1916. Like everything else, the business situation is different. And like everybody else, business men learned something last time.

It is entirely possible that direct war business may not be nearly as great this time as last, even if the arms embargo should be repealed. In the first place, the British and French are much better equipped to supply themselves. They have had a year's clear warning, and the horrible shortage of shells and war materials which so hurt the British in 1914 is unlikely this time. Instead of three important arms plants in Britain, as in 1914, there are hundreds today. The French, whose best industrial territory was immediately taken from them in 1914, do not face this handicap today. Such buying as these countries do in the United States will be organized and centralized this time, not wildly competitive.

In fact, such uplift as business has seen thus far is only to a small extent attributable directly to war buying. Most of it has come from the stimulus which war conditions gave to domestic buying, from our own arms program, and from orders shunted to the United States from countries cut off from Europe.

Steel production at above 84 per cent of production may not hold that pace, being apparently far ahead of consumption. Farm commodity prices are up, but still far below parity. Railway earnings for August show that marked improvement in that field had begun before the war broke. Chilean, Brazilian, and Portuguese railway equipment orders in prospect are war business only indirectly. So are other orders from neutrals.

The most hopeful side of this "war boomlet" is the restrained way in which business leaders are facing it. Repeated warnings have come from many of them against overoptimism, overspeculation, overexpansion.

Quick, excessive profits will only be taken away by taxation, whereas if such profit margins are turned as far as possible into cheapened prices leading to an expanded domestic market, the gains made may be solidified and made a bulwark for the future when contraction follows abnormal war conditions. This policy is no theory urged by impractical dreamers, but a sound, statesmanlike course put forward by such pragmatists as the American Bankers' Association.

Such uplift as war conditions bring to business must be regarded not as something in itself, but simply as a chance to reduce unemployment and the relief burden, to get budgets back on a sounder basis, and, in short, to get solidly to our feet.

SHALL WE SWAP LAWS IN MIDSTREAM?

One of the best arguments against changing a neutrality law after war has broken out was voiced by William Jennings Bryan, who was secretary of state while Franklin D. Roosevelt was assistant secretary of the navy.

The time was 1915 and the shoe was on the other foot. At that time the Germans were seeking to get the United States to declare an embargo on arms to the allies. German Ambassador Bernstorff proposed to Mr. Bryan that an embargo should be applied.

Mr. Bryan wrote the following to the German diplomat: This government holds, as I believe your excellency is aware, and is constrained to hold in view of the present indisputable doctrines of international law, that any changes in its own laws of neutrality during the progress of a war which would affect unequally the relations of the United States with the nations at war would be an unjustifiable departure from the principles of strict neutrality by which it has sought to direct its actions, and I respectfully submit that none of the circumstances urged in your excellency's memorandum alters the principles involved. The placing of an embargo upon the trade in arms at the present time would constitute such a change and be a direct violation of the neutrality of the United States. It will, I feel assured, be clear to your excellency that, holding this view and considering itself in honor bound by it, it is out of the question for this government to consider such a course.

In 1915 the United States government, seeking to remain neutral, retained an arms sales policy to all comers in the name of peace.

There is one argument that not all the oratory of the administration can overthrow:

The embargo was intended to prevent the sale of arms to all powers in the present war. It does that. If it does what it was intended to do, why repeal it?

CONGRESS COULD ACT ON THIS

Decision of the national labor relations board that a New Hampshire textile mill must pay two years' back wages to two men who it never hired suggests that New Dealers should curb dictatorship and regimentation at home before going into hysterics about such evils abroad.

The labor act forbids "discrimination" in the hiring of employees. It seems that two men applied for work at the mill, and according to factory officials they were rejected for the following reasons:

They were handicapped because of age.
They had jobs elsewhere.
They lacked experience with a new type of loom which the mill was installing.

More desirable employees were available.
Rejection of the applicants led to charges that the mill used discrimination. Acting under a broad interpretation of powers granted the board to make the labor act workable, the board insisted that the two men legally had been hired and were entitled to pay.

Reading between the lines, one gets the impression that the board suspected the New Hampshire mill recognized the applicants as labor agitators, or at least persons with records making their employment undesirable. However, any one of the reasons cited by the mill should have disqualified the two for employment whether they were labor agitators or not.

The question has been brought to this point: Must an employer accept men whom he believes to be personally objectionable even though under his standards they are not otherwise employable?

The situation provides another reason why Congress should make a thorough investigation of the labor board and workings of the labor act before industry in the United States is completely under a Herman Goering dictatorship.

Washington, Oct. 6.—This war is working out backwards in business as well as in fighting so far. Instead of Britain trying to rush in and buy up all loose U. S. raw materials, State Secretary Hull has actually been trying to get Britain to let us have some from her. The British bought the entire Australian wool clip for this year immediately. Some of it usually is taken by the U. S. For the past week Hull and his men have been trying to arrange that we get our usual share. Likewise Britain has been making passes at the coarse carpet wool production of Argentina, of which we normally take a substantial percentage. Hull's agents are likewise trying to protect our buying market there.

That this is not a unique instance is illustrated by what has happened in our tobacco market. Britain did not dash in to lay up stocks for her soldiers, sailors and marines. She actually stopped buying in our market entirely, in the middle of our marketing season, as soon as the war broke out. As she is our largest normal customer, the effect has been very harmful.

She has a 2½ years supply on hand, which is somewhat but not greatly in excess of normal. Apparently she is trying to conserve foreign exchange for more necessary war materials later when and if congress repeals the embargo against planes particularly, as well as arms and munitions.

In this instance, the proposal to repeal the embargo has apparently hurt rather than helped this primary export trade. Another less direct instance is fruit. Britain has licensed her fruit importers in such a way as to bar soft fruits (peaches, plums) and to threaten apples (for which she has been our best customer.) It may have been done partly to conserve exchange, but the war on the seas has created hazards for transporting our fruits which may kill the export apple-growing industry in some eastern states entirely. Specially cooled boats are required and the delays caused by zig-zagging to avoid submarines and by waiting for convoys, may make fruit transportation unfeasible.

Someone also is going to be fooled on cotton. It is said the southern senators are eager for Mr. Roosevelt's program of arms embargo repeal, because (for one thing at least) they expect increased British demand for cotton as in previous years. There is a law against government officials predicting the price and demand for cotton, but you will find within the agriculture department if you look hard enough, an official report indicating the export market for American cotton is likely to diminish rather than increase, regardless of what congress does about the arms embargo. This official cotton survey indicates no marked increase in price until next year's crop, based on increased domestic demand (due to better business) which is calculated to just about offset the decline in exports.

On top of all this the world wheat supply is the highest on record, 58 per cent larger than 1914, whereas consumption is only 30 per cent greater. Belligerents are supposed to have secret stores beyond these official figures. German and Italian stocks are reported sufficient to obviate any "difficulty in domestic needs there." World acreage next year is expected to be as large as this.

Small increasing export demand for livestock has been noticed, but prices declined after the first week of the war and heavy demand is not expected.

Only foreign agents who have appeared in our commodity markets prominently since the war started are Russian, Italian, Swedish, and Spanish, trying to buy rubber and coffee, presumably for Germany—the belligerent with whom no American foreign trade was expected.

This evidence suggests again there is no basis for price increases in raw materials. It hints likewise that Britain is going to buy much more carefully from us in this war, that she is likely to save her money for steel, arms, planes and finished products at the expense of consumers goods, in anticipation of repeal of the embargo.

Chapter 30
Together
"Ain't it the truth?" Webby asked, as if she had read his thought. "That's one who'll get the cream every time while her betters have to take skim milk. Miss Buff sure made a mistake when she hung in around her neck. Like as not, she'll be wiring again that she don't like Chicago."

"I hope she does," the young man said through set teeth. "I only hope she does!" He took Webby by her fat shoulders and spoke determinedly. "From now on—or at least until Mr. Sarroll comes—I'm looking after Miss Buff, understand? You're to bring me all telegrams—or call me to the telephone when it's fixed. She's not to be bothered with anything—least of all Miss DeMuth. Do I make myself plain, Webby?"

"You sure do," the housekeeper agreed; and added, with a side-long glance to see how this addition would be received, "and high time, too!"

Buff awoke around one o'clock, weak but free from pain and fever. Tim would not let her talk.

"Wait till after the doctor comes," he bade her. "I'm expecting him any minute now."

In the middle of the afternoon two cars made their way up the road: Dr. Westland's and Tim's, driven by Simons.

"Well," demanded Tim anxiously when the physician came downstairs.

"Almost," Dr. Westland replied, smiling. "She's been a pretty sick girl, but you seem to have known what to do. She's to stay in bed for at least a week, have plenty of milk and cream, and eat what she wants, but let alone—y-u get that, Corliss? No excitement of any kind. She's in a rundown condition. That's why this pleurisy hit her so hard. I've given Mrs. Webb thorough instructions, and I'll permit."

"How about wiring her parents? They're in Arizona, you know."

"I'll attend to that myself. No need to alarm them—I'll tell them so for you."

"I'm staying here until she's well," Tim announced. "I won't tire her. I won't do anything but stand by in case she gets worse. You can trust me, Doc."

Dr. Westland inspected him over the rims of his spectacles.

"I believe I can, I hope I can! You're not particularly needed here, but maybe it's just as well somebody besides the servants should be in charge. I'll see about having the telephone fixed at her bedside. I want her to keep as quiet as possible for a day or two. Don't go into her room unless she asks for you. If she does, stay only a few minutes and don't talk any more than is necessary."

So began the fortnight of Tim's second stay at the ranch. Buff did little but sleep for the first few days; sleep and sip the glasses of creamy milk brought her by Webby.

"Does she know I'm here?" Tim asked the housekeeper wistfully.

Webby shook her head. "She don't hardly know anything. She's like a worn-out child. Sometimes she goes to sleep while I'm giving her her egg and cream. But Doc claims that's what she needs."

So Tim continued to tiptoe to his room, contenting himself with seeing that the house was kept warm, the road to the highway open, and the telephone in working order.

"She can sit up a while this afternoon," Dr. Westland announced at the end of the week. "There's no fire in her room, though—'He cast a speculative eye at the blazing logs in the living room. Tim trembled with eagerness."

"Could I—would it be all right for me to carry her down here?" The astute doctor had a smile. Webby reported that Tim's name was often on the patient's lips in her dazed sleep.

"I'll go back upstairs and tell her you're here," he said after a moment's thought. Presently he was down again, nodding reassurance to the anxious Tim. "It's all right. She'll be expected to stay here. She's not to stay up longer than half an hour, and she's not to be excited in any way. He emphasized the final warning and took his departure, his smile growing broader as he nuzzled on the romance unfolding beneath his eyes.

"It's a disease like any other," he chuckled. "Rapid pulse, delusions, loss of appetite; but it's a form of illness most patients welcome, and more often than not convalescence is delayed until a really permanent relationship has been established. Bless the youngsters!" said Dr. Westland who would be sixty-eight his next birthday and thought of Buff and Tim as barely out of childhood.

Webby came down importantly at three o'clock.

"She's ready, Mr. Tim!"

It required all his self-control to speak quietly, even casually, to the slim girl in the warm bathrobe. Her eyes were very blue in her pale face, but the smile he loved, she suddenly as she caught sight of him.

"Hello, Tim!"

"Hello, Buff!" Nice to find you looking so well, May I—? Without waiting for an answer he stooped and lifted her gently in his arms, bore her down the stairs. He wondered if she could hear the pounding of his heart. So little, so infinitely dear and precious, and safe for the moment in his keeping!

Webby fused about her in the living room. The big chair must be close, but not too close, to the fire. A footstool beneath her feet, a light blanket over her knees. Was there anything else?

"Nothing, Webby," the girl answered for herself. "I'm perfectly comfortable, I'm grand—just where I am."

You're stronger. You've been a very sick little girl, you know."

She was silent for perhaps three minutes, a really remarkable feat for Buff who was getting well. Then:

"Tim, I want you to know about Iris. She's all right now, she's truly happy, she's—"

Electrified
"Iris!" All his suppressed anger at the girl crackled in his voice. "What do I care about Iris? It was she who was responsible for your illness. You wouldn't check yourself, gugging down the words which crowded to his lips. "Look here, Buff, we mustn't talk. Not this first time, anyway. I'm going to sit still and not open my mouth until it's time to take you upstairs. I had my orders from Dr. Westland this morning."

"All right," she agreed meekly. The minutes passed, slow-footed. To have her so close, so sweet, so gentle and friendly, and not gather her to his heart, demanded a self-control which required all his strength.

He was electrified to feel the touch of a small hand on his head.

"Tim!"

"Flush, my darling!"

"But—am I... your darling, Tim?"

He turned toward her, knelt so that his face was on a level with hers.

"I love you with all my heart, Buff," he said simply.

Her arms went round his neck and she rested her head against his shoulder.

"I know I mustn't talk. Dr. Westland told me, too. But... but... how long, Tim?"

Apparently he understood the cry of her heart.

"Ever since I saw you, I think. Since the first moment you came up the steps and spoke to me. I seemed to know then—that that wasn't only my money, and my prestige as an assayer I'd lost, but my heart, too."

Silence. Two before the fire had no idea whether it lasted two minutes or two hours when they heard Webby's scandalized voice.

"Mr. Tim! So this is how you take care of her, is it? I guess I'd better get Doc on the phone. I guess I'd better wire Mr. Carroll."

Tim's shining eyes met hers above Buff's golden head.

"She's mine now, Webby. If there's any consulting to be done, I'm the one to offer suggestions."

He picked her up in his arms. "She's going back to bed. Oh, yes, you are darling, I can't have you tiring yourself."

Webby followed close behind.

"And you ought to see the kiss he gave her before he put her back in bed," she said to Simons that night. "I guess them movie censors would have tore their hair, it lasted so long." The realizing that she had been betrayed by excitement and satisfaction into a somewhat intimate speech with the former nursemaid, Buff felt a better right than them two?

Going to be married as soon as her pa and ma get here from Arizona. Mr. Tim wants to take her to Florida to get her strength back.

At the telephone Tim was saying unsteadily: "That you, George? Tim speaking. Just wanted to tell you to keep next Tuesday free: going to be a party out here. Sort of exclusive, too. Buff and her father and mother, Dr. Westland and a minister, Webby, you and Simons—and yes, I expect to be among those present, too! Guy, I'm that happy—"

Embarrassed by his own emotion he slammed the receiver on its hook before the dazed George could answer.

THE END

Sen. Davis Defends Loyalty of Germans

Philadelphia, Oct. 7.—(AP)—Senator James J. Davis (R-Pa.), born in Wales, has "lived too long in this country not to know my rights," he told a huge German rally which he had been urged not to address.

Ignoring a protest by the American League for Peace and Democracy, Davis spoke last night before 2,300 persons celebrating the 256th anniversary of the founding of Germantown.

"I'd have kept my appointment if I had to get a handcar and pump my way from Washington," he said. "I challenge anybody to find a more loyal and patriotic group than the Americans of German descent in Pennsylvania."

The senator asserted in a prepared speech that "in this hour of propaganda and counter-propaganda the American people are not asleep."

The United States should build up a national defense which "will permit no foreign power to vision destruction of our civilization," but should be concerned only with "the preservation of America," he said.

Soviet-Finn Trade Pact is Discussed

Helsinki, Oct. 7.—(AP)—The foreign ministry announced today the Russian government had suggested that Finland send a delegate to Moscow to discuss political and economic matters of mutual concern.

The Finnish government has not yet acted on the invitation. However, Finland's minister to Moscow, Aarno Yrjö-Koskinen, is presently conferring with Soviet officials concerning a trade agreement.

Commerce between Finland and Russia has been small since Finland obtained her independence in 1917, but the Finns have talked of a Russian trade agreement for years.

PRESIDENT WILL NOT ACT UNLESS ALLIES WANT IT

Recalls Hitler's Rejection Of Previous Offers to Mediate

Washington, Oct. 7.—(9P)—Hints from Berlin that Adolf Hitler would like President Roosevelt to mediate the war in Europe brought a prediction in usually well informed quarters today that the president would not offer such mediation unless Britain and France wanted him to do so.

Roosevelt proposed mediation in peace appeals to the German chancellor and former President Ignace Moscicki of Poland prior to the outbreak of the conflict, it was recalled, but Hitler did not reply until his troops had moved against the Poles. When he did reply, the German chancellor said Poland had created disturbances and an intolerable situation and that mediation had been out of the question.

The president was represented as being unwilling now to lend himself to any move by Hitler which would have the effect of throwing the onus for continuance of the war on Britain and France.

If Germany were to suggest more formally that Roosevelt offer to mediate the conflict, it was predicted in reliable quarters, he would not make the offer unless he had assurances in advance from the allies that they would accept.

The overture from Berlin has been thus far no more formal nor definite than a statement by informed sources to newsmen that the head of any neutral state, preferably Roosevelt, could achieve a last place in history by mediating the war.

HITLER IS WAITING

Berlin, Oct. 7.—(AP)—Adolf Hitler waited today for some neutral mediator to start negotiations to end the European war, preferably President Roosevelt, according to well informed sources.

In these quarters, the present situation was described as a "great opportunity" for the president, but it was appreciated that past offers of his good offices for mediation of European quarrels had been rejected by Hitler, and that the rejections were followed by propaganda directed against the United States.

The history of Roosevelt's appeals gave rise to a general belief that the best qualified neutral in sight who might be persuaded to try mediation under the conditions laid down yesterday in his reichstag speech was Premier Mussolini.

There was no positive information or substantiation in Berlin, but the expectation in informed circles was that the Italian leader would make an address in the next few days to bring Hitler's offer a step nearer to realization.

Casting about for other neutral states which might attempt the delicate role of mediation, some German leaders looked to Sweden. There was an unsubstantiated rumor that Sweden already had consulted other Scandinavian countries to see if a conference at Oslo might be acceptable.

May Wait a Week

But German leaders did not expect such a momentous matter to be determined overnight. It was said Hitler expected to wait at least a week, and possibly longer, for world opinion to crystallize before judging for himself the general reaction to his reichstag speech.

In it, he offered a cessation of hostilities based upon an exclusive German-Soviet Russian determination of the future of Poland, or war from which he expressed certainty Germany would emerge unbeaten. He also envisaged an international conference aimed at establishment of European security.

In quarters close to the government it was said that if, during Hitler's waiting period, an enemy should go out of his way to make a hostile demonstration against Germany—for example, bomb a German city or sink a German ship—the reich would conclude immediately that Hitler's "outstretched hand" had been rejected.

Then, it was said Germany

Discretionary Powers of A. F. of L. President Curtailed by Fellows

Cincinnati, Ohio, Oct. 7.—The American Federation of Labor completed the first week of its annual meeting here by narrowing the discretionary power vested in President William Green to discipline state federations of labor and city central bodies.

By unanimous vote the convention inserted an amendment in the A. F. of L. constitution yesterday outlining precise procedure to be followed by the federation president when he finds cause to suspend or revoke the charters of state and city organizations. It applies also to directly affiliated federal local unions, but not to autonomous international unions.

The amendment makes it mandatory for Green to file charges within 45 days after he has taken an emergency disciplinary action against an affiliate. The constitution previously provided no procedure, merely authorizing him to suspend or expel organizations or their officials.

The defined judicial powers conferred on the president require him to render a decision after the trial, which may be appealed to the council.

A. F. of L. leaders said the change in the president's disciplinary power was made to protect the federation from possible litigation growing out of charter suspensions.

FANFARE

JUMPED THE GUN

Jim O'Malley who did the crystal gazing last night and predicted today's football winners, jumped the gun on the Southern California-Indiana game which will not be played until next week-end. However, Jim sticks to his story of naming Southern California.

TABLE TENNIS TALK

It is going to be chilly one of these days and time for the indoor sports to bow into the picture. There is talk now of organizing a Telegraph table tennis team to challenge other clubs which may be organized by the I. N. U. and the Elks. Those who have been lined up as probable members of the press team are Ward Smith, Bill Moser and Jack Fritzen. Others are being considered.

POLO STAR

Dick Folk, former Polo high school ace, now playing with the Brooklyn Dodgers, is getting a play in the backfield now, according to late reports. He was started at guard, shifted to center and finally ended up as a blocking back. Dick has the weight and speed to show effective work.

ALL FIGURED OUT

The Reds played the Yankees last night in the third game of the World Series and lost, 4 to 0. At least that's the way it worked out on Jack Fritzen's baseball game, an invention of his own which is really an excellent evening's pastime. According to Jack's game, DiMaggio drove in all the runs and scored a homer, two doubles and a single. Runs were scored by Crositi, DiMaggio, Keller and Rolfe. The Reds got six hits off the offerings of Hadley, all singles. The Yanks got 11 hits off Junior Thompson. Fritzen writes his own ticket.

ONCE OVER LIGHTLY

Al Couppee, first string quarterback on the Iowa team, is reported to have been benched with a foot infection which may mean that Gerald Ankeny of Dixon will see action in the Iowa-Indiana game today. . . . The Alumni football team, under the direction of Coach Charlie Roudy will meet for a second practice session at the high school athletic field tomorrow morning at 9:30. . . . a certain Cub fan was heard moving up and down the turnpike yesterday muttering to himself: "They said the Cubs were dubs, but they knocked the Sox out of the box" . . . Byron defeated Lanark, 35 to 14, in a six-man football game yesterday on the winner's field.

FINAL GOLF MATCH

J. A. "Three-Wheel" Fritzen, the Country Club publicity man, says the final match of the men's two-ball foursome tournament will be played tomorrow. The championship will go to the winner of the Huchner-Barrowman and Detweiler-Cannon tilt over 18 holes. Fred and Gene get 3 strokes handicap over the "champ" and Le Grand on the 8 holes.

ARCHERY MEET TOMORROW

The second outdoor shoot of the newly organized Dixon Archery club will be held tomorrow afternoon at Bill Thompson's range at 317 Steel avenue. Men and women of Sherwood forest will be stringing their bows at 3 o'clock and anyone not having equipment or transportation is urged to call Bill Thompson at 1315. The shoot will be open to the public and anyone who is not a member of the club is welcome to attend. B. J. Frazer and C. B. Lindell of the Dixon high school are to be initiated into the club in the near future. Both are enthusiastic followers of the age-old sport. Applications for membership are now being received and any adult is urged to contact Bill Thompson for further details.

Dykes Will Use Smith Against Cubs in Series

Chicago, Oct. 7.—(AP)—Manager Jimmy Dykes called upon Southpaw Edgar Smith today to pitch against the in-and-out Chicago Cubs in the fourth game of the City Series between the National Leaguers and the White Sox.

Smith will try where another Sox southpaw failed yesterday—when the Cubs knocked Lefty Thornton Lee out of the box and went on to win, 4 to 2. This victory gave the Cubs an edge in the three games to date. The teams split the first two games. Claude Passeau was Gabby Hartnett's mound choice as the Cubs went after their third victory.

PRACTICE FIELD HOLDS ATTENTION TODAY FOR ILLINOIS BOILERMAKERS

Chicago, Oct. 7.—(AP)—The practice field held the attention of the University of Illinois and Purdue football squads today while their Western Conference rivals engaged in warfare on scattered gridirons.

Both had an off day, the more to prepare for next week's important encounters. Illinois journeys to Los Angeles to engage Southern California and the Boiler-makers play Minnesota at Minneapolis.

Purdue's varsity squad had a game scheduled this afternoon with the freshmen. Coach Mal Elward is trying out several men at the tackle spot left vacant when Herman Timperman went out of action with a leg injury.

The Illini engaged in its last workout today before taking off Monday for the west coast. Coach Bob Zupke has not announced the names of the 35 players making the trip.

It was the first game of the season for the southern eleven, which bowed to the Irish last year in Atlanta, 14 to 6.

Notre Dame, victor over Purdue last week in a viciously-fought defensive contest, was favored to win. Tech has a question-mark line and a fine set of experienced backs, but its finest weapon was the long distance punting of Neil Cavette, erstwhile back who now plays left guard.

The Buckeyes, ranked in the Big Ten's second division so far, were prepared to match pass for pass the wide open style of game which the Tigers employed in trouncing Colorado a week ago.

Clear and fairly warm football weather was forecast. A crowd of 60,000 was expected.

Correvent's debut. Evanston, Ill., Oct. 7.—(AP)—Coach Lynn Waldorf sent his Northwestern eleven against the University of Oklahoma today in a game featuring the debut of Bill De Correvent in big-time football.

Projects were for warm but cloudy weather when the anticipated 33,000 spectators assemble for the kickoff at 2 P. M. (CST).

Reds Resent "Sore Arm Talk" Sterling Teams End in Tie; DeKalb Wins

SUPPORTERS OF REDS SURROUND THEM IN BATTLE

Third Game of World Series Played in Cincinnati

BY GAYLE TALBOT

Cincinnati, Ohio, Oct. 7.—(AP)—The Cincinnati Reds, as they go into the third game of the 1939 World Series today, surrounded by the adulation of their own supporters, are a little tired of hearing about the sore-arm and ailing Yankee pitchers.

Red Ruffing held them to four hits in the opening game and beat them, 2 to 1. He said he had a splitting pain in his right elbow every time he delivered the ball. Monte Pearson gave the National Leaguers only two blows in the second bout—shut them out 4 to 0. It was a beautiful performance in every sense of the word. But it turns out that Monte too, had been sporting a sore arm most of the season, and was in there pitching on nerve alone.

And now, today, the Reds were up against another casualty—Vernon (Lefty) Gomez. Lefty has a wrenched muscle in his right side, which makes pitching an agony and forces him to wear sticking plasters over the sore spots.

"I'm weary of hearing that stuff," said one of the most prominent of the Reds. "Sure, they're good. They've knocked our ears down twice. But I'm a little disappointed when Ruffing has to build up his abili before-hand, and then sticks to it after he's pitched that kind of a game. If that guy had a sore arm, I'm Cleopatra, and I never saw the Nile in my life."

Ruffing was dully ruffled when he heard this doubt had been expressed. He offered to compare his arm to any man's and said he would bet he had the sorest salary wing in Christendom.

What the Reds feel, of course, is that the Yankees are rubbing it in. They don't mind being licked by a great team, they imply, but they don't appreciate the idea that they are bowing to an aggregation of cripples. Probably they're whistling past the grave yard, but they still insist they will win the series.

"Those guys are going to be playing in our park for the next three days," said Ernie Lombardi. "Let's see how well they like that. Wait until their fielders start running up those terraces." The terraces Ernie referred to are a phenomenon peculiar to Crosley field. About 30 or 40 feet from the fences, the ground begins to rise sharply, and from there on the fielders chasing a fly ball is running uphill.

The Yankees investigated those grass-canopied Alps thoroughly in the course of their long work-out yesterday, and Joe DiMaggio, for one, said he didn't think the footing would bother him.

All are agreed that the Reds must win behind Junior Thompson today if they were to have the ghost of a chance. He is their third, their last capable pitcher.

Thompson is a freshman, a square-jawed, serious youngster who impressed Manager McKeechle in training camp last spring, and who came along to win 13 games of the series, can curb the good fast ball and a sharp curve, both of which, it has been demonstrated in the first two games of the series, can urb the Yankee hitters.

Midwestern Football Stadia Are Centers of Attraction for Fans

INVADERS NOTRE DAME

South Bend, Ind., Oct. 7.—(AP)—Georgia Tech's tricky football team invaded Notre Dame today to play the fighting Irish in one of the top intersectional games of the day.

It was the first game of the season for the southern eleven, which bowed to the Irish last year in Atlanta, 14 to 6.

Notre Dame, victor over Purdue last week in a viciously-fought defensive contest, was favored to win. Tech has a question-mark line and a fine set of experienced backs, but its finest weapon was the long distance punting of Neil Cavette, erstwhile back who now plays left guard.

The Buckeyes, ranked in the Big Ten's second division so far, were prepared to match pass for pass the wide open style of game which the Tigers employed in trouncing Colorado a week ago.

Clear and fairly warm football weather was forecast. A crowd of 60,000 was expected.

Correvent's debut. Evanston, Ill., Oct. 7.—(AP)—Coach Lynn Waldorf sent his Northwestern eleven against the University of Oklahoma today in a game featuring the debut of Bill De Correvent in big-time football.

Projects were for warm but cloudy weather when the anticipated 33,000 spectators assemble for the kickoff at 2 P. M. (CST).

It's a strange war in Europe and a stranger one on the neighborhood football battlefields this season.

As the season progresses Dixon looks better and better as the favored teams of the North Central conference pull strange rabbits out of the hat. Last night Sterling fought through its second tie game when Community invaded the new athletic field for a 12 to 12 ending. At Belvidere, the highly touted and experienced home team fell before Coach Jim Trees' squad of novices, 8 to 7. And last week Mendota and Belvidere ended the first conference tilt in a 13 to 13 deadlock.

Results in the Rock River conference are running more nearly to the lines laid down by pre-season predictions with Rock Falls still holding top spot in the standings but sharing the honor with Oregon after the games of last night.

At the beginning of the season Coach Jim Trees described himself as a coach without a team, but after last night's blasting of the Belvidere team with its ten returning lettermen, Trees must suspect he has at least eleven boys who know the difference between a gridiron and a tennis court.

Belvidere scored first in the game at DeKalb when Reiman snagged a pass from Lear and dashed for the goal, Lear drop-kicked the extra point.

Two points were awarded to DeKalb early in the third frame on a safety and Alms, DeKalb quarterback, took the kickoff and raced 65 yards for the winning touchdown.

The Belvidere reserves won the preliminary game, 19 to 0.

Rock Falls, defending champions of the Rock River conference, went to Rochelle last night and followed through with a 12 to 0 victory.

Fullback Purdue and Quarterback Robinson plunged over for two-yard touchdowns to end drives from midfield in the second and final quarters. Both attempts to convert for the extra points failed, the first on a bad pass from center and the second place-kick was blocked.

Rock Falls swept the preliminary game with a 18 to 0 victory.

Ideal football weather and a newly lighted field brought out a large crowd to see Polo play last evening against the Mt. Morris team which scored four touchdowns and two extra points to defeated the Marcos, 26 to 0. In Polo's second Rock River conference game.

The Marcos were evenly matched against the invaders during the first half of the game. A Polo fumble on the hosts' 30-yard line and a recovery by Mt. Morris proved too much for Ralston's eleven and the Mounders took the ball over for a touchdown.

Mt. Morris scored three more touchdowns in the second half. Ballard and Miller were the stars for the Mounders while Duisling of Polo reeled off several long gains.

INTER-STATE RIVALRY

Ann Arbor, Mich., Oct. 7.—(AP)—The University of Michigan opened its football season today against Michigan State college in a renewal of one of the oldest grid rivalries in the midwest. In 33 games, Michigan has won 24, Michigan State 6 and three were ties.

The contest, scheduled for 1 P. M. (C.S.T.) was expected to be a battle of lines.

Chicago has hopes. Chicago, Oct. 7.—(AP)—The University of Chicago had high hopes of its first grid victory of the young season today as the Maroons went against Wabash college on Stagg field.

Wabash already has played two games, tying one and losing the other. Chicago lost its opener to Beloit, 6-0.

The Maroons were at full strength for today's engagement. Bob Wasem, end, was out of practice most of the

SOUTH AND WEST SETTLE DOWN TO CONFERENCE RACE

Other Teams Continue in Inter-Sectional Grid Warfare

BY HUGH S. FULLERTON, JR.

New York, Oct. 7.—(AP)—Southern and western football teams, a step or two ahead of rivals from other sections, got down to the serious business of settling conference titles today, while outstanding teams of the east, midwest and southwest continued to concentrate on intersectional and inter-conference clashes.

Although Alabama and Louisiana State, two of the southeastern circuit's top-ranking teams, engaged in intersectional clashes in the northeast with Fordham and Holy Cross, respectively, and Georgia Tech faced Notre Dame at South Bend, no fewer than eight others in the loop engaged in conference contests. The Kentucky-Vanderbilt clash looks like the only close one of the lot, as mighty Tennessee took on Sewanee, Tulane played Auburn, and the surprising Mississippi State team met Florida.

In the southern conference, Duke, defending champion and the team to beat again this year, played Colgate, an eastern rival. But there were four conference games—North Carolina, current leader, against Virginia Tech, Clemson against North Carolina State, V. M. I. against Davidson and Richmond against Washington and Lee.

Pacific coast and Rocky Mountain Big Seven conference teams also were concerned mainly with their own groups. Southern California, picked the coast conference No. 1 team until it was tied by Oregon, tried a comeback against Washington State. Oregon played Stanford, and U. C. L. A. faced Washington. California tackled its old non-conference

Splendid Meeting

The Franklin Grove Woman's club held its first meeting of the year in the Kersten gymnasium on October 2 at 2 p. m. The meeting was called to order by the president, Lorraine Schmucker. The club song "America, the Beautiful," was sung with Daisy Fischer at the piano and Iva Black as chorister. Kathryn Herbst led the pledge to the flag and the president read the club collect. Sixty-two members answered to the roll call. The regular order of business followed with the reading of the minutes, treasurer's report, communications, presentation of bills and reports of active committees. Elizabeth Moulton gave a report on the work of the public welfare committee. Gladys Jacobs, chairman of the American homes committee, gave an interesting report of the trip to Chicago that they sponsored this past summer. Helen Schafer, chairman of the Garden club, gave a review of the flower show held during the fall festival.

The president then welcomed the new members to the club. Seventeen were added to the membership, including: Mesdames Helen Brucker, Ethel Beeghley, Alice Burthen, Mary Burthen, Alta Chiles, Kathryn Cover, Evelyn Emmons, Elsie Gleim, Lois Gross, Florence Herwig, Ethel (Slogett) Miller, Freda Sandrock, Dora Schafer, Louella Schafer, Clara Walford, Anna Richwine and Charlotte Lahman.

Mrs. Schmucker then turned the program over to Mrs. Lucy Ives, chairman of the education and literature department. Mrs. Ives introduced the first number on the program, a vocal solo by Georgia Lahman, who sang "Start the Day Right" and "Over the Rainbow". She was accompanied at the piano by her mother, Mrs. Charlotte Lahman.

The speaker of the afternoon, Mrs. Lorea Gerdes, presented a statistical. She had chosen as her topic "Literature and Education".

Miss Miller said literature is the foundation of all education. She explained the novels which are more literary, and the biographies which are more statistical. Every person's life would make a good story, she said. Education now demands that we know more about government and its activities. Time did not permit her to discuss poetry but she gave a poem to illustrate her points. The "Star Spangled Banner" was a poem put to music as was the song "Illinois". Literature is really the appreciation of life itself.

Miss Miller's talk was very interesting. She was president of the Paw Paw Woman's club which was organized in April, 1939, and in a very short time had a membership of 100 members.

Pictures were then taken of the speaker and various committees that will be active through the year. These will be used in the scrapbook.

Lovely refreshments were then served by the committee. Mrs. Lucy Ives, chairman, Mesdames Elizabeth Crawford, Carrie E. Crawford, Anna Buck, Myrtle Butler, Mary Grace Degner, Mary Miller and Miss Clara Lahman.

Mrs. Carrie Crawford and Miss Clara Lahman poured.

In the home economics department the sophomores in foods planned, prepared and served breakfast on Wednesday morning. The class divided into groups of four and planned the menu, color scheme and centerpiece. Each table chose a host, hostess, son and daughter, each of whom performed the duty designated to their respective capacity. Serving the meal, family style. The menus and color schemes planned were:

(1) Fruit cocktail, Hot Ralston, cinnamon toast, coconut, Color scheme—blue, yellow and white.

(2) Orange juice, rice and raisins, waffles, jelly, chocolate. Color scheme—orange and brown.

(3) Pineapple juice, Hot Ralston with dates, scrambled eggs and bacon, buttered toast, cocoa. Color scheme—Yellow and brown.

The breakfasts close the first portion of the work, the next unit being luncheons and suppers. The freshmen girls have just finished a unit on personal and family relationships. The next unit includes color and its relationship to the individual; the fundamentals of art and types of flower arrangements; the principles of interesting using these principles. Another application is being carried out in making a notebook and cover.

"Random Shots"

The fall intermural sports program got under way with its first six-man touch football game last week. In spite of a few flashy runs and passes the game ended in a 0-0 tie.

Orchestra

The orchestra started in earnest last Tuesday. About 16 members were on hand for the second practice, and believe it or not, it was a good one. Some new college marches were tried and good work was done on the Rio Rita score by Romberg.

School Party

The school party should be a success Friday as over 95 percent of the student body plans to be on hand. The party will be held in the gymnasium. It is the way the sophomores worry over the stunts that are planned for the freshmen.

Speech Club

Speech club seems to really function in the American homes committee. Our good friend Gerald put on a pantomime of a boxer and succeeded.

Basketball

Basketball is already in the air even though the practice sessions are still over a week away. This year's games will see the team on the road a good bit of the time. The home games will not exceed five or six in number as we must return those played here last year. Lee, Malta, Forrester, and Kirkland may be new teams to appear here this year.

Supper Party Planned

After five weeks of a rather concentrated study schedule, the high school students relaxed on Friday night. The occasion was the first social event of the year, an all-school party.

Students were changed into reporters and printers as this was a newspaper party. This first edition of the Wildcat Howl was published Friday evening, at 8 o'clock at the Kersten gymnasium.

Contrary to the usual procedure the joke section of the paper was run off the presses first. The freshmen and sophomores, especially, enjoyed this section.

Church Notes

Presbyterian—Tomorrow, Oct. 8, will be Rally day in the Presbyterian Sunday school. At this time classes will be promoted and some new teachers will be inducted into the joys of "teaching ideas how to shoot." It is desirable that every member of the school be present and on time at 10 o'clock. For the church service at 11 o'clock, the pastor will continue the studies in the book of Exodus, particularly the type that those formerly presented.

The Boy Scout troop staged a serenade under the window of this observer last evening. The boys sang their songs surprisingly well.

With one of our friends we were recently entertained at tea by Thomas Richards of Kewanee. Mr. Richards is a native-born Englishman and his home gives one the impression of having been transported to England. As we sat in his lovely parlor sipping a cup of tea and partaking of the English cake called scones, we realized for the first time why our own Amos Patrick Harshman is so insistent on his tea and why his preparation is such a rite with him. As the British prepare it there is something about tea to a person under a mental strain that soothes the nerves, restores mental balance and renders one at peace with all mankind.

Albert Linker is marked sick on the schedule board. Details are being written.

George Dooling has been transferred to night duty, effective this evening.

To Miss Edna Freeman and William Clark whose marriage it was announced would be placed this month our hearty congratulations and best wishes for a long, happy and prosperous married life together.

The first of the new flood lights that are to be placed outside each cottage has been installed. It is believed that these lights will greatly lighten the work of the night police and those whose duty requires them to patrol the grounds at night.

A delegation of employees attended the dedication of the Abraham Lincoln bridge and the armory Thursday afternoon.

Leon A. Wake, Scoutmaster, escorted a group of Cub Scouts from B2 to the Boy Scout camp at the river yesterday. The boys were much interested in the grave of President Thomas Wood, said to be buried in the camp site.

DEFENDS GRAIN WITH SLINGSHOT

Wichita Falls, Tex. (AP)—Thanks to a couple of old-fashioned slingshots, Farmer Jones saved his maize crops from the blackbirds while neighbors all around him were losing theirs.

Jones rigged up the slingshots for himself and son, Billy Ray, seven, when swarms of blackbirds descended on their maize fields. Mrs. Jones and two children were the "ammunition train," keeping cloth bags filled with pebbles and relaying them to the "artillerymen."

For four weeks they patrolled the field almost from dawn to dusk, keeping the birds off the move. Finally the discouraged birds left.

State Hospital

With the passing of summer comes the end of one of the most beautiful color communications we have ever seen. Last spring at the instigation of Miss Mattie Stacy and Miss Bertha Lipp of a sanitarium morning glories were planted at the cottage over the entrance to the cottage. All summer long their brilliant blue has stood out from their background of leafy green making the arch one of the most beautiful things we have ever seen. We hope Miss Stacy and Miss Lipp will continue having flowers at the arch next year.

Horner Veto of Bills Upheld In Court Petition

Springfield, Ill., Oct. 7.—(AP)—
The veto of two bills by Governor
Horner was upheld in petitions filed with the Illinois Supreme court today by Attorney General
John E. Cassidy in reply to court actions to validate the measures.
Cassidy asked that petitions for writs of mandamus to force
Secretary of State Edward J.
Hughes to authenticate the two bills be dismissed, disputing the contention that the governor has only ten days, Sundays excepted, after the legislature adjourns in which to act on measures.

A group of Chicago optometrists seeking validation of the Salliel bill which would have revised and broadened the state
optometry act and 217 contractors asking similar action on the Hubbard bill for $1,910,000 to meet sales tax refund claims contended that Horner acted on the bills after a longer period.

Cassidy expressed the belief that it was the intention of the constitution to give the governor ten days to consider bills after they reach his desk, the same theory which Horner has been following.

PRE-WAR ENVOY TO AMERICA IS DEAD IN GENEVA

Count von Bernstorff the Last Ambassador of Imperial Germany

Geneva, Oct. 7.—(AP)—Count Johann Heinrich von Bernstorff, 77-year-old self-exiled German diplomat who was ambassador to Washington preceding the United States' entry into the World war, died of a heart ailment here yesterday.

With him at the time of death was his American-born wife, the former Jeanne Luckemeyer of New York. He had lived in strict privacy during the past few years, seeing only a few old friends and working on his memoirs, published in 1936. For the past 18 months he had been ill.

Funeral services will be private, without flowers, in accordance with Bernstorff's wishes. Following cremation, burial will be in a Geneva cemetery.

Exceedingly popular in the United States prior to the World war, he became a hated figure in this country during the heated days of 1917. Feeling against him reached a climax when it was disclosed March 1 that the "Zimmerman note" in which the German foreign minister invited Mexico to join Germany and Japan in a war against the United States, had been handled through Count Bernstorff's office.

Count Johann Heinrich von Bernstorff was the last ambassador to represent Imperial Germany in the United States and was the only one of the pre-war diplomats who was retained in the active service of the German republic.

In the belief of republican German opinion, von Bernstorff was not to blame for America's entry into the World War and the feeling was general that he did everything possible to avert that step. In support of that contention it was pointed out that he had warned the Wilhelmstrasse what would happen if the unrestricted submarine warfare were prosecuted, but his warnings went unheeded.

His pre-war record, therefore, was regarded as no hindrance to his post-war activities in the government.

Previous to his appointment as ambassador to the United States in 1908, Count von Bernstorff had served eight years as an artillery officer and 13 years in the diplomatic service. His American mission came to an end in the third year of the World War when the United States in February, 1917, severed diplomatic relations with Germany. The ambassador returned to Europe on a Danish vessel after being subjected to a thorough search by the British at Halifax.

But in Berlin Count von Bernstorff was obliged to wait two months before being received by the emperor. At their meeting the kaiser was said to have avoided all earnest discussion of the issue at stake. The opinion still prevailed that the submarine warfare would finish the Americans before they could set foot on European soil.

Recalled to Duty
Von Bernstorff quit the service in May, 1917, but was recalled to active duty when his friend Richard von Kuehlmann became foreign minister in August that year. He then resumed the post of ambassador to Turkey.

After the revolution von Bernstorff in March, 1919, was made chairman of the foreign office committee to compile the material for the German delegation to the Versailles Peace Conference. With the completion of that work four months later he became active in politics as a member of the democratic party, which sent him to the Reichstag in 1921.

The former ambassador became an enthusiastic supporter of the idea of Germany becoming a member of the League of Nations and was chosen president of the German League of Nations Society. In 1923 he was named vice president of the international convention of national societies favoring the league. This work so engrossed von Bernstorff that he declined in December, 1924, to be a candidate for re-election to parliament. Since 1926 he had been chairman of the German delegation to the League of Nations disarmament meetings.

Count von Bernstorff was born November 14, 1862, at London. There his father, Count Albrecht von Bernstorff, a Mecklenburg nobleman, represented Prussia first as minister and then as ambassador. After spending his childhood years in London, the son was sent to high school at Reizburg, in Holstein. At the conclusion of his course in 1881 he joined the artillery, serving as an officer until 1889 when he joined the diplomatic service.

During the next 13 years he filled posts at Constantinople, Belgrade, Dresden, St. Petersburg and Munich. In 1902 he went to London as counselor of the embassy and four years later was transferred to Cairo as minister. From the latter post he was transferred to Washington as ambassador in 1908.

He married Jeanne Luckemeyer, member of a wealthy New York family, by whom he had a son and two daughters. The latter became the wife of Count von Pourtales and von Loewenstein.

Political Democrat
Although an aristocrat and scion of an ancient and distinguished noble family, Count von Bernstorff was at the same time regarded as a political democrat. He was an enthusiastic supporter of the political concepts of Woodrow Wilson. Upon his return to Germany in 1917 the foreign office desired him to give his views before the general staff of the army, but General Ludendorff declined to receive him on the grounds he was too "red."

Count von Bernstorff began his career in America auspiciously, being materially aided by the fact that his wife was an American. In the course of time he received honorary degrees from several American universities and there was a demand for him as a public speaker.

The latter fact became irksome to some of the ambassador's political enemies in Germany, one of whom wrote of him:
"Judging by the quantity of his speeches, he stands at the top of the German diplomatic set. At times the official news agency reports several addresses a week which the count held in America. The semi-official wire has during the years 1909 and 1910 been used so often to spread Count Bernstorff's speeches, that the German people will welcome the relief of not seeing these reports any longer."

Position Difficult
The outbreak of the World War made Count von Bernstorff's position the more difficult because of the activities of German agents in the United States, notably the military attaché, Captain Boy-Ed. With the sinking of the Lusitania he used every effort to postpone the American declaration of war and to induce Germany to accept the German government's course was heading the United States in that direction.

"My task was done when the Lusitania incident was disposed of without America's entry into the war," he once said. "After that the question of peace or war depended not upon me, but upon the Wilhelmstrasse and the Great Army Headquarters. They knew exactly that a repetition of the Lusitania incident or the unlimited extension of submarine warfare would automatically mean war with the United States. But they would not listen."

Von Bernstorff had hoped that President Wilson would become a neutral arbiter of the world's destinies at the conclusion of the war. He thoroughly believed in Wilson's peace principles and always spoke enthusiastically of the American war president.

After quitting the Reichstag in 1924, Count von Bernstorff and his wife retired to their beautiful estate overlooking Lake Starnberg in Upper Bavaria. There the count, once once of the vanguard of diplomats whose every evening was spent at a diplomatic ball or dinner party, or on a spell-binding tour, devoted himself to gardening, dog-breeding and cattle raising. And he became a teetotaler. After the revolution he removed his Wilhelmstrasse upward pointing mustache.

Danville Grand Jury Indicts Woman Friday for Phillips Murder
Danville, Ill., Oct. 7.—(AP)—Mrs. Sarah B. Lester, 56, today was under indictment charged with murdering Samuel F. Phillips, 63, secretary of the Danville Building Association.

The Vermillion county grand jury yesterday indicted Mrs. Lester and also returned 29 other indictments.

Phillips, who was one of Danville's wealthiest citizens, was shot in the head September 21 as he stepped from his private office, and died from the bullet wound the next day. Mrs. Lester was seized in the company offices. Police Chief Richard Johnson said Mrs. Lester had entered the building asked for Phillips, drew a pistol from her purse and shot him as he emerged from his office.

The police chief, at the time of the shooting, said Mrs. Lester had told him the building association had notified her and her husband that it was going to start foreclosure proceedings on their property if payments were not made on a $1,500 loan.

One of the U. S. Army Boeing B-15 planes recently climbed to an altitude of 8200 feet with a payload of 31,205 pounds, thus setting a new international record.

CUSHING, FAMED BRAIN SURGEON, DIES THIS MORN

Heart Ailment Fatal to Pioneer in Field at New Haven, Conn.

New Haven, Conn., Oct. 7.—(AP)—Dr. Harvey Williams Cushing, whose pioneering in modern brain surgery won him worldwide renown, died today at the age of 70.

The surgeon, professor emeritus of neurology at Yale, had been in poor health for some time. He died at New Haven hospital at 2:45 A. M. (1:45 A. M., CST) of a heart ailment.

Dr. Cushing, whose medical work during the World War was admitted to the hospital Wednesday. His name was placed on the danger list immediately.

The surgeon, author of the 1926 Pulitzer prize-winning biography "The Life of Sir William Osler," was the father-in-law of James Roosevelt, son of President Roosevelt.

The medical world knew Dr. Cushing as a brilliant pioneer in modern brain surgery, but the public came to know him for his enthralling writings, the "Life of Sir William Osler" which won the Pulitzer Prize in 1926 and the widely-read "From a Surgeon's Journal," published ten years later.

When he was graduated from Harvard with a M. D. degree in 1895, after attending Yale, there lay before him an unexplored field in brain surgery, especially as it dealt with tumorous growths. After much painstaking research for ten years he penetrated the mystery surrounding this phase of surgery; within the next 28 years he had reduced the danger attached to delicate brain tumor operations to a point where it compared favorably with major abdominal operations.

Performed Many Operations
In the twenty years that Dr. Cushing retained the directorship of the Peter Bent Brigham hospital at Boston and was identified with Harvard, he performed as high as three and four eight-hour brain operations a week, collected 2,000 brain tumors and stored them in bottles and taught 2,500 students from all parts of the world.

From 1902 until 1912, he was associate professor of surgery at Johns Hopkins University. Then Harvard named him as professor of surgery. While at Johns Hopkins the sharp-eyed, keen-minded surgeon introduced conservatism in the operating room and new procedures.

He developed the use of the cross-bow incision for operations at the base of the brain; decompressing operations in intra-cranial hematomas in the newborn; and successful treatments for facial paralysis. His idea of the anesthetic blocking of the nerve trunks later became one of the fundamental principles of surgery. He was a pioneer in the use of X-rays in the diagnosis and treatment of brain tumors. He was the first to use the X-ray in the diagnosis of brain tumors. He was the first to use the X-ray in the diagnosis of brain tumors.

At the Battle Front
The world war started while he was at Harvard and in the spring of 1915 he embarked for France, where he served with the British, French and later American forces. During this period he held the ranks of major, lieutenant colonel and colonel and was named director of Base Hospital No. 5, a Harvard unit attached to the British expeditionary force.

His war experience won for him the distinguished service medal awarded in 1923 by the United States government, and out of it also came the absorbing book "From a Surgeon's Journal."

Back from the war, he returned to his duties at Harvard and the hospital in Boston, where he remained until the age limitation ruling forced retirement in 1922. The next year Yale named him its first Sterling professor of neurology. He was identified with the university in that capacity until his retirement in 1937, when he received an emeritus rating and became director of studies in the history of medicine and an associate fellow of Trumbull College.

He was born in Cleveland, O., April 8, 1869, one of nine children of Henry Kirke and Betsey M. (Williams) Cushing.

He married Katherine Stone in Cleveland, June 10, 1902. They had a son and three daughters. One of the daughters, Betsey, became the wife of James Roosevelt, son of the president.

Had Courageous Life
Dr. Cushing's fruitful life was one of courage and perseverance. For valiant and heroic work under fire at the front, he was mentioned in the dispatches of Field Marshal Douglas Haig.

While never wounded during participation as a hospital surgeon in the great conflict, Dr. Cushing suffered inflammation of the nerve trunks which caused the muscles of the soles and palms to waste away. He was confined to bed for a long period and even upon arising failed to regain use of his hands for months.

With the departure of the affliction from his hands he still was forced to favor his feet and it was some time before he could walk with crutches or a cane.

His Iron Nerve
The iron nerve that contributed so much to his success in surgery gave him the fortitude to withstand worldly shocks. One day in 1926 Dr. Cushing was at Peter Bent Brigham hospital preparing for a delicate operation when he received word his son, a student at Yale, had died. He stopped only long enough to telephone his wife in New York, then went to the operating room and carried on.

On a later occasion, his youngest daughter, Barbara, faced a minor operation on advice of consultants summoned by her father. Although the others volunteered to perform it, Dr. Cushing undertook the task himself. It was successful.

To observe Dr. Cushing's 70th birthday, the Harvey Cushing society, a group of former associates and students organized in 1932, met April 17, 1939, in New Haven, Conn., his home in later years, to pay him tribute. They were joined by physicians from throughout the United States and Canada who held a two and one-half day symposium on medical matters at Yale.

Dr. Cushing's entrance into the medical profession came as a natural sequence in the family history, his father having served in the Civil War as surgeon major of the Seventh Ohio Volunteer Infantry.

Dr. Cushing's hobbies were gathering old books, playing tennis and witnessing the annual baseball games between Yale and Harvard, an experience from which he received a double thrill, as he played for three years on the Eli varsity nine.

Gov. Henry Horner at Rites for Cardinal

Chicago, Oct. 7.—(AP)—Gov. Henry Horner made the funeral for George Cardinal Mundelein yesterday the occasion for his first appearance at a large public gathering in nearly a year.

For the past 11 months the state's chief executive has avoided crowds in an effort to regain his health. He remained at Holy Name cathedral throughout the three-hour service, however.

Among other state officials at the funeral were Attorney General John E. Cassidy, Secretary of State Edward J. Hughes, U. S. Senators Scott W. Lucas and James M. Slattery, and Congressman John C. Martin.

Prelates who blessed the bier of the Cardinal included two Illinois bishops, Edward F. Hoban of Rockford and James Griffin of Springfield.

FUND RAISED IN SCOUT DRIVE TO AID BOYS, GIRLS

Money Subscribed Next Week Will Be Evenly Divided

The funds raised in the campaign which begins next week for the Boy and Girl Scouts of Dixon will be divided equally between the two organizations, according to reports made today by the committee.

The share of the Boy Scouts' money goes to the area headquarters at Rockford and is combined with funds from the remainder of the area. It is later apportioned out through the districts. Because of the fact that the scout executive, E. A. Rowley, lives here in Dixon more money is allotted that is raised here.

All of the Girl Scouts' share stays in Dixon except less than $75 which goes to national headquarters.

A review of both organizations shows the past year has been full of activity. The girls summary shows:

310 girls were served. Active registered includes: 62 Senior Scouts; 149 Intermediate Scouts; others, numbering 31 more who benefited.

Sixteen troops — three senior troops, eight intermediate troops, and five Brownie troops. Activities of different troops included: Hikes to Lowell park, home nursing, folk dancing, modern dancing, Scouts' Own program, swimming at Mount Morris pool, soap carving, singing of Christmas carols, study of Switzerland, giving baskets to needy families.

Outdoor living at Camp Ralston—five one-week camp sessions held, 160 girls attended from Dixon and vicinity, overnight and week-end trips also taken during the year.

Special awards — One Golden Eaglet was conferred.

The boys' programs have included a varied calendar of activities.

Three hundred and seventeen boys enrolled and served during the past year, representing an increase of 74 or 23 percent over previous year for the largest registration in Dixon's history. 141 boys in Cub packs; 173 boys in Scout troops.

Three new units were organized—Troop 75 of Loveland P. T. A., Charles Ramsey, Scoutmaster; troop 80 of Congregational church, John Yates, Scoutmaster; Sea Scout ship 567 of the American Legion, John White, skipper.

Total active units: Six Scout troops, one Sea Scout ship, four Cub packs.

Year round program of activities: Regular troop, patrol, den, pack and ship meetings, rallies, overnight camps, hikes, good turns, camporees, short term camps. Mid West First contests. Blackhawk Council camp at Camp Delavan. Sea Scout regatta at Moline. Cub field day at Lowell park. Three days Cub Day camp at Lowell park. Annual Cub kite contest. Cub-Parent nights, picnics and outings.

Regular advancement program: Boards of Review held monthly. Complete corps of Merit Badge Counselors. District and troop courts of honor. Advancement in all troops and packs.

Two Eagle badges were awarded.

NEW FARM PERIL

An Iowa man has perfected a new kind of wheat that looks like barley and tastes like oats. Sounds like just one more thing for the farmers to raise too much of.—Judge.
